We strive to unite women from various occupations including engineering, construction, project management, property development & ownership architecture and more. ASHRAE Podcast

Engineering & HVAC in the Developing World:

Guerrero, Ph.D., who with a group of people designed a heating system to heat the homes of people who live high in the Andean regions of Peru. These residents face severe cold temperatures during the winter, so for them, this work is not about the engineering, it's about the matter of survival.
